But getting into HBS is no easy feat. The school has a highly selective admissions process, and only a small percentage of applicants are accepted each year. So, what does it take to get into HBS? A former admissions board member has offered up some insider tips to help you increase your chances of being admitted.

1. Start early

The admissions process for HBS is a long and competitive one, so it's important to start preparing early. The school recommends that you begin thinking about your application at least a year in advance. This will give you plenty of time to gather your materials, research the school, and prepare for your interviews.

2. Get good grades

Your academic performance is one of the most important factors in the admissions process. HBS is looking for students with strong academic records who have excelled in their undergraduate studies. Make sure to get good grades in your core business courses, as well as in other areas that you're passionate about.

3. Take the GMAT or GRE

The GMAT or GRE is a standardized test that is required for all HBS applicants. The test measures your critical thinking, problem-solving, and writing skills. While there is no set score that will guarantee you admission to HBS, you should aim to score in the top 10% of test-takers.

4. Get involved in extracurricular activities

HBS is looking for students who are well-rounded and have a variety of interests. Make sure to get involved in extracurricular activities that you're passionate about. This could include anything from sports to clubs to volunteering. Your involvement will show the admissions committee that you're a well-rounded individual who is interested in making a difference in the world.

5. Write a strong essay

The personal essay is your chance to tell the admissions committee who you are and why you want to attend HBS. This is your opportunity to showcase your unique qualities and experiences. Make sure to write a clear, concise, and well-written essay that highlights your strengths and why you're a good fit for HBS.

6. Get good recommendations

The letters of recommendation are another important part of your application. These letters should come from people who know you well and can attest to your character, work ethic, and academic ability. Make sure to choose recommenders who can write strong, positive letters that will support your application.

7. Prepare for your interviews

If you're invited to interview for HBS, it's important to prepare carefully. The interview is your chance to make a personal connection with the admissions committee and to show them why you're the right fit for the school. Make sure to do your research on HBS and to practice answering common interview questions. By preparing thoroughly, you can increase your chances of making a good impression and securing your spot at HBS.

Getting into Harvard Business School is a competitive process, but it's not impossible. By following these insider tips, you can increase your chances of being admitted to this prestigious institution. With hard work, dedication, and a little luck, you can achieve your dream of attending HBS.
